2020 COMMUNITY NEEDS ASSESSMENT

Academics, policy makers, social service agencies, and many others have been talking about the causes and conditions of poverty for decades, even centuries. While there is not necessarily agreement on how to eradicate poverty, there is broad agreement on many of the factors influencing it.

Rank, a scholar whose work is often in the Certified Community Action Professional (CCAP) body of knowledge, writes “...that American poverty is largely the result of structural, rather than individual, failings. There simply are not enough viable opportunities for all Americans.”¹ Another researcher, when looking at the body of literature on poverty, found, “When available jobs are concentrated in low-skill occupations with shrinking wages, limited benefits, poor working conditions, and fluctuating schedules, labor force participation may not be sufficient to keep some workers and their families out of poverty.”² In short, the causes of poverty are systemic.

While poverty is a macro issue, there are individual, household, and community predictors of poverty. Researchers have found that people are often pushed into poverty when there is: job loss, a decline in earnings, no high school degree, a female-headed household, a household with children, and disability.³ More recently, debt has become the focus of poverty research. One study found that “given the lack of emergency funds, high debt-to-income ratios, overbearing mortgage payments, and debt delinquency issues, low-income households struggled more than other households through the Great Recession.”⁴ These researchers also talked about the “severe debt distress” low-income households face as a result of the factors mentioned above.

The following report, based on survey data from clients using Community Action Agencies’ services across the state as well as data available from the U.S. Census Bureau, gives life to the academic study of poverty. As part of this needs assessment, financially vulnerable Hoosiers were asked about many areas of life that research have shown to contribute to the causes and conditions of poverty. Factors such as educational attainment, debt burden and access to financial services, employment, housing, transportations, health care, food insecurity, and many others. Neighbors and community members say, in their own words, factors that caused their current experience of poverty, what effect poverty has had on their lives, how the pandemic affected the and their families, and what they still need as they work through poverty in a system that is set up to keep some people on the bottom.

There are many challenges facing Indiana communities right now, and no single organization can meet all the needs. In partnership with leaders in each community, we can work together to make sure that everyone in Indiana has the chance to reach their full potential.

KEY AREA - HOUSING

54.1% Rent a home, apartment or other housing unit

Over half of survey respondents (54%) indicated that they are renters. As rents rise across Indiana, low-income individuals and their families will continue to face difficulty maintaining their housing. Indiana is short over 135,000 affordable housing units for extremely low-income renters ($26,200 for a 4-person household).

The median monthly rent payment amount was $500. This might seem very affordable, but it is important to note that we asked participants what THEY PAID, not the total amount of the housing costs. So this amount reflects the total costs for some respondents. For others it is a reduced cost because of:

- Roommates (21% responded that they were living with others for save money and 18% were doing so to help their roommates out financially, but that could still indicate costs were being shared),
- Special arrangements with landlords because of COVID-19,
- Emergency rental assistance, or
- A subsidy from Section 8/Housing Choice Vouchers (21% of respondents were receiving Housing Choice vouchers).
